

Our Contributors

Dr Elizabeth Kingston-Harrison works for the General Assembly of Unitarian and Free Christian Churches and is training for ministry with Unitarian College and Harris Manchester College, Oxford. Lizzie has a long-standing interest in the history of liberal political and religious thought, epistemology, and the emergence of rational dissent in the eighteenth century. More recently she has also been exploring approaches to historical change, integral thought and meta-modern spirituality. Her DPhil, from the University of Sussex Centre for Intellectual History, explores the ways in which Joseph Priestley's approach to language and the mind underpinned his rationalist theology and progressive view of human nature.

Frank Walker is a retired Unitarian minister who most recently served as minister of Cambridge and Bury St Edmonds from 1976 to 1999. He is the author of a number of books including On the Frontier (1997) and The Evil Inclination & other Tales of the Unexpected (2005).

Rev Peter Hewis. Before training for the ministry at the Unitarian College and Manchester University, Peter spent three years playing Cornet then French Horn with the Band of the 2nd Battalion Parachute Regiment. He then had three ministries: Bethnal Green in London for seven years, Hinckley for twenty-nine years and finally at Harris Manchester College as the Chaplain, Bursar, Tutor in Ministerial Training and Minister to the Unitarian Chapel Society. Peter also spent a six-month exchange at Knoxville, Tennessee in 1970 and a further six months as the interim minister in 1980. In 1991-2 he was the President of the General Assembly, for more than twenty years he was Secretary of the North (now East) Midland District Association and for twenty years he was Secretary of the Ministers' Benevolent Society. In retirement he plays Tenor Horn with Yarnnton Brass Band and is the Band President. His wife Heddwen is a retired NHS Nutritionist and Dietitian who specialised in the treatment of HIV/AIDS patients.

Peter B. Godfrey is a retired Unitarian minister and Editor Emeritus of Faith and Freedom.

Rev John Midgley trained for the ministry at Unitarian College, Manchester (UCM) and undertook ministries in Lancashire Cheshire and Yorkshire, combined with tutoring at UCM for twenty years. He served for six years as General Assembly Development Officer and has been a director of the Inquirer Board for fifteen years and a regular columnist.

Francis Elliot-Wright was a Congregational Minister before becoming a convinced Unitarian. In March 2024 he was appointed Minister-Elect at Brook Street Chapel, Knutsford. Francis grew up in Sale, Cheshire, and was heavily involved with drama and music, leading to a drama degree at Bretton Hall College. He went to London, did stand up comedy and wrote more plays before finding love, marriage, faith and completely changing track. While employed as a care worker he earned degrees from Foundation to Master's in Theology, Practical Theology, and Applied Theology before a PGCE in Religious Education and seven years as an RE teacher.